

INTERNATIONAL PROFESSIONAL ADVANCED LEADERSHIP (MET)

(MASL P300114, Variable Duration; Analysis Code: KA MET-PME) Each IPAL MET is specifically designed for the host country and its content reflects the requirements and preferences identified and agreed to by the host country during an initial assessment. METs can vary in length from one to five weeks and be offered to general or specific audiences. The MET's curriculum can be provided in the language desired by the host country using simultaneous translation and instructors with international language capability.

LEADERSHIP REACTION COURSE TRAINER (LRCT)

(MASL P309274), 5 days; Analysis Code: KA MET-PME) Over many decades of extensive use by both U.S. and foreign militaries, the Leadership Reaction Course (LRC) has proven itself to be one of the most effective leadership and teambuilding tools available today. Working with the host country our experienced "Train-the Trainer" team can provide design and construction guidance for specific LRC requirements and the necessary training required to produce certified LRC teachers and trainers. At the conclusion of the 5 day course graduates will be fully capable of designing, facilitating and teaching on a Leadership Reaction Course. Seminar content includes LRC history, safety, scenario design, exercise brief/debrief and leader evaluation. Also included is comprehensive leadership training such as; Battlefield studies, communication skills and enhanced decision making. Easy to manufacture, cost efficient and durable, a Leadership Reaction Course will provide many years of useful leadership training for military and government civilian personnel of all ranks, positions and ages. Dollar for dollar there is not a more effective and useful leadership training tool within the international training community and certified LRC trainers will be able to integrate LRC training into any military training course.

NETSAFA INTERNATIONAL TRAINING CENTER (NITC)

NITC is part of the Naval Education Security Assistance Field Activity (NETSAFA), which oversees all international training conducted by the U.S. Navy. NITC partnered with the Defense Institute for International Legal Studies, Center for Naval Leadership, U.S. Navy Senior Enlisted Academy, the Naval Expeditionary Combat Command, the United States Marine Corps and the U.S. Coast Guard to develop this training program.

INTERNATIONAL PROFESSIONAL ADVANCED LEADERSHIP COURSE (IPAL)

THE NEED: The dynamic world situation of the 21st century has made a significant impact on military forces worldwide. In combating the war on terror and striving for a secure peacetime environment, military professionals are now called upon to carry out an ever expanding range of military, law enforcement, deterrent, and humanitarian missions. Due to the inherent nature of these new objectives, many of these important efforts must be conducted independently by relatively small units of personnel. Hard learned experience dictates that small unit operations of this type absolutely require the highest levels of leadership, decision making ability, and training. To meet these new challenges, the leadership and professional development of personnel has become a critical component of national security and any mission's success.

MEETING THE NEED: The International Professional Advanced Leadership (IPAL) Course was created by the U.S. to assist our international friends and allies in enhancing the professionalism and the leadership skills of their senior enlisted and junior officers. Our state of the art training techniques combined with cutting edge course curriculum prepares today's international leaders for an expanded role in the complex and rapidly evolving military operations taking place around the world and improves participating countries' interoperability with U.S. and other coalition forces. This education and training program is designed to transform and strengthen the professional development and leadership capabilities of attendees and to form the foundation for a country's continued leadership training.

OUR MISSION

To assist partner countries in developing and maintaining a corps of highly professional, superbly trained, and dynamic leaders; leadership that is prepared and ready to lead into the 21st century!

Our instructors, for both the resident and mobile education courses, are hand selected from the ranks of active duty and retired senior U.S. military professionals. Our instructors and guest lecturers have many decades of leadership and operational experience. This experience, combined with real world insight and polished instructor techniques, makes for a very effective and unique course of instruction. The results oriented curriculum is combined with a robust schedule of "Out of the Classroom" experiences that includes visits to operational units, military training facilities, team building and problem solving on the Leadership Reaction Course and a comprehensive Field Studies Program. There is simply no other stand-alone course like it offered by the U.S.

RESIDENT PROGRAMS INTERNATIONAL PROFESSIONAL ADVANCED LEADERSHIP COURSE (IPAL)

(MASL P171039, 5 weeks, ECL 65; Analysis Code: AF – SNCO Basic Level PME) The IPAL Course is designed to enhance the management skills of senior enlisted and junior officers. It thoroughly addresses vital areas such as: leadership, effective communication skills, decision making enhancement, personality profile training, team building, diversity awareness, instructor training, Rule of Law, worldwide military current events and physical fitness. Students attending IPAL will be prepared to conduct leadership training and serve as liaison team members for all forms of U.S. mobile leadership and professionalism assistance.

Unique to the international training community, our Leadership Reaction Course (LRC) is the cornerstone of developing and enhancing the practical leadership skills of our students. The LRC is a "Hands-On" application of leadership, decision making, team building and communication skills. LRC training is used extensively by the U.S. military and is a proven training vehicle to develop real world leadership ability.
